A cathode-ray tube (CRT) is a vacuum tube containing one or more electron guns, the beams of which are manipulated to display images on a phosphorescent screen. The images may represent electrical waveforms (oscilloscope), pictures (television set, computer monitor), radar targets, or other phenomena. A CRT on a television set is commonly called a picture tube.

The Samsung name comes up briefly on the screen, then goes dark for a few seconds, then the name appears briefly again, then it goes dark again. And so on, without stopping. So since that time, the TV has been unwatchable. Samsung reportedly settled a class action lawsuit with affected TV owners because of this problem in 2012.
